1. I should like to commend the Communications personnel here and in the field (including those [redacted] for their outstanding performance in the handling of the traffic on [redacted])

2. Based upon my own knowledge, and the observations of DD/P, NEA Division and [redacted] who associate themselves with me in this expression, the Communications personnel who were involved did an excellent job in handling an inordinately large amount of traffic of a sensitive nature in a most expeditious manner. Fine service was given not only to Headquarters, but to the field as well. In several instances, the elapsed time between dispatch and receipt of telegrams was reduced substantially below the normal interval.

3. I should appreciate it if you would convey this to those of the Communications personnel concerned.
